in motion »

» Wandering through New Wilmington during seasonal breaks or serene summer months, the college straggler soon realizes that without the commotion of classes, meetings, sporting events, and performances, the college town is quite motionless. We soon discover that the faculty, staff, and students are what make the Westminster College campus spring into motion. Whether dashing to class, strolling on the quad with friends, or heading into town for dinner, the student activity on campus keeps the college going. As each group of students arrives to replace the outgoing senior class, the new students take up the tradition of active involvement. They fill the classes, the officer positions, and the team openings that others have left behind. Every group of WC students maintains the yearly cycle—into the dorms, into the classrooms, across the Senior Terrace, out into the world, in motion

One More Time

As is tradition, the Westminster campus awoke from its summer slumber as the class of 2010 arrived for Fresh Start on August 25, 2006. Helpful upper-class volunteers aided the new students as they experienced their first college move-in day. The four days ahead of them were busy, devoted to orientation, instruction, and, as always, a little bit of fun before classes started and the upperclassmen arrived. Seth McClarey, the Fresh Start Senior Coordinator for 2006, described this year's orientation as "remarkably smooth," even though it was packed with activities. The students were introduced to the campus through the traditional Opening Convocation, then learned about Titan Traverse, life at college, and academics at Westminster. A perennial favorite, the Late Night performances, included amusing talents of Fresh Start members. All these activities served to teach, but also make new students feel at home and welcome in their new setting. "It pretty much reinforced my decision about Westminster—that I was happy there," said first-year Brendan Keiper. "I felt like I was cared about and most certainly not a number."

Working together. Jenny Smith, James Hilliard, Ellice Hayek, Sarah Mantella, and Lindsay Crist demonstrate perfect technique while passing a marble.

Night on the Water

It was an early September night at Westminster College, and students dressed in their finest formalwear headed toward buses parked in front of the Field House. This can only mean one thing—it's Gateway Clipper time yet again! The night of the Gateway Clipper formal fell on September 8th, and at 9 p.m., four buses whisked students and their dates off to Pittsburgh for a night of dancing, socializing, and fun. This dance, sponsored every year by CPC, is always a memorable fall event. Students had several choices of entertainment while on board the boat, from stargazing on the open-air top deck to chatting over drinks on the middle deck, which overlooked the bottom deck and the dance floor. A couple elegantly showed off ballroom dances while around them groups of dancers quickly formed to party the night away. After the dance ended at 2 a.m., students were exhausted, but content. Senior Julia Broskey summed up the evening: "My feet hurt, my hair wilted, so obviously I had a good time!"

Theatre Westminster was a hit as it presented its biannual fall musical, Guys and Dolls. The sold out show ran from November 8-12. Starring junior David Timm as Sky Masterson and sophomore Alicia Tansey as Sarah Brown, Guys and Dolls had a little bit of something for everyone.

Sky Masterson, a gambler, and Sarah Brown, head of the Save a Soul mission, were destined for love. Enter Nathan Detroit (John Buco) in an attempt to raise money to fund the weekly craps game further frustrating his fiancée, Adelaide (Tracy Harmon). A gambler's bet, a lover's quarrel, and a failing mission lead to confusion, comedy, and matrimonial bliss.

The audience enjoyed the show as much as the cast and crew. Director Eileen Hendrickson praised the cast calling them "some of the best talent [she's] seen on a college stage." Jenna Diorio, band president and clarinet in the pit orchestra, echoed Hendrickson, praising the work and dedication of everyone involved. Thanks to the hard work of the cast, crew, and pit orchestra, Guys and Dolls left audiences on the edge of their seats and laughing along with the onstage shenanigans.

Westminster Worship

Festive Christmas trees, soft white lights, and vibrant poinsettias adorned Orr Auditorium as the Westminster community gathered to celebrate Christmas Vespers on December 10, 2006. Months of preparation, long hours of rehearsal, and a final Saturday morning run-through allowed the service to run smoothly. Senior chapel staff member Julia Broskey describes the preparation for the ceremony: "The planning for Christmas Vespers started at the beginning of the semester by the chapel staff and chapel office."

Choirs, musicians, dancers, readers, and actors also participated in this year's celebration. As a member of the men's chorus, Lee Scott states, "It is always an honor to be able to participate in the Christmas Vespers service and to be able to praise God with our voices." The service also utilized the drama of "The Shoemaker's Dream," which actors performed between carols and readings. Actors included Barry Unis, Floyd Dierker, Steve Kokal, Danielle Adams, Beth Brooks, and Ian Behm. Liturgical dancer Jaycie Galbreath recognizes the diversity of the service: "Christmas Vespers is a great time for all of the choirs, dancers, the theater department, and more to come together to worship God in the beautifully decorated Orr Auditorium."

Reverend Jim Mohr delivered an energetic Christmas message, "Great Things in Small Packages," in which he charged the campus community to honor the true meaning of the Christmas season through acts of giving. Once again, the Westminster Cable Network broadcasted a taped recording of the service to share with the surrounding communities.

"[The hope of Christmas] demands acting out in your life"

New in Town

As the newest and most exiting addition to campus, the townhouses in Berlin Village offer a new student housing experience at Westminster. The building, officially dedicated on October 27, was sponsored in large part by Mr. George Berlin, who also donated funds for the Berlin Student Lounge. A firm believer in providing positive experiences in all areas of student life, Mr. Berlin sponsored this project to help give sixty seniors new on-campus housing options. Overlooking Lake Brittain, the new Berlin Village is comprised of 15 units—10 of which were donated by Berlin, with the other 5 funded by individual donors. The complex now graces the campus as a physical sign of Westminster's continued progress.

Breaking onto the Scene

JD Eicher, singer/songwriter and sophomore at Westminster, released his second album, Broken Mirrors and Microscopes on March 30. Eicher wrote, performed, and produced all of the lyrics and music for the 13-track release. This album followed his first work, Wings to Fly, which came out in early 2006. His CD release show took place right on campus in McKelvey's Berlin Student Lounge, a familiar place for Eicher who has performed there often during Titan Taverns and other events.

The release party was well-received by the student body, who have come to comprise a large fan base for Eicher. "The students at Westminster are amazing supporters of what I'm doing, and I'm so grateful to them," said Eicher. The sophomore album release was an achievement for Eicher, and the independent project is a testament to his talent as well as Chelsea Boecker's, the WC senior who gets credit for all photography in Broken Mirrors and Microscopes.

Love-hate relationship. Both characters in The Bear (played by Amber Scalfari and Ian Turner) try to intimidate each other, but instead fall in love.

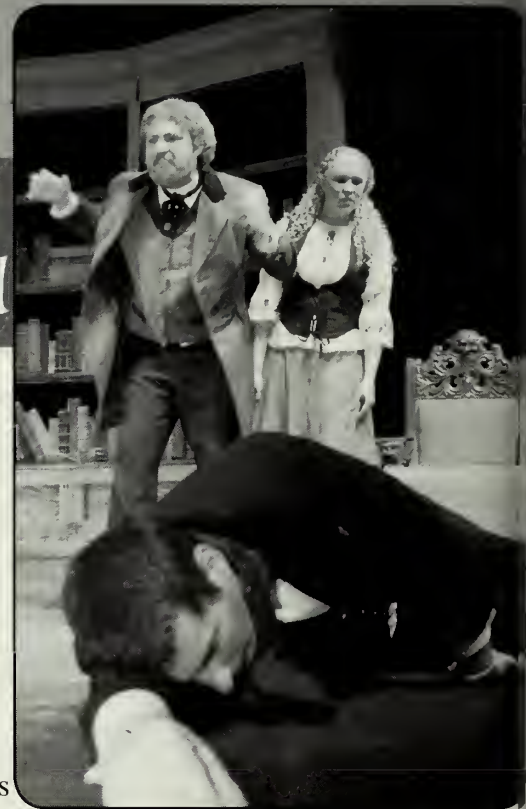

Tragedy and Comedy

The Theater department's activities for the fall semester largely revolved around this year's musical, Guys and Dolls. Theatrical drama returned to the stage in full force, however, with the spring semester's productions of All My Sons and Love Among the Russians. Both plays concerned serious life issues, but portrayed the issues in different ways.

Arthur Miller's All My Sons, performed February 22-25 and directed by Dr. Scott Mackenzie, was a drama that looked at the tragedies of personal responsibility and duty to one's country set against the backdrop of post-World War II America. Dr. Mackenzie, himself a serviceman who recently returned from Iraq, wished to bring questions about war to campus. "I saw this as an opportunity," he said, "to help [students] understand that theater can and should be about more than killing a couple hours in escapism." The play was not anti-war, he emphasized, but rather a story that makes one consider all aspects of war.

Love Among the Russians ran from April 19-22 and was directed by Mrs. Eileen Hendrickson. The production dealt with love and courtship through the genre of farce. This production consisted of two one-acts, The Bear and The Proposal. Senior John Buco said of the productions this semester that, "the 2007 theater season was a lot of fun, a lot of different things. It was great to see the younger people grow and to know that the Theater department will be in good hands."

 sband (played by John Buco) looks on worriedly.

Fresh face. Jonathan Deyton landed his first major role on the WC stage as Chris Keller, the son who must come to terms with the family secret.

Reflection on All My Sons

"Despite the normal bumps and problems that are part of college theater . . . the show was an extremely strong production. The actors grew each night and found new nuances in their roles that they brought to their performances."

"We need to look beyond what is good for the individual or the company and look at what is good for the nation and the world."

Relay for Life is always a special event on campus that touches each participant in different ways. Relay is not just a walk around the track, but it is also an event which raises funds for the fight against cancer, a time to commemorate those who were lost to cancer, and an opportunity to celebrate those who survived. "The survivors always really enjoy having the encouragement and support of all the people there," said senior Mick Henninger, one of the student organizers of the event. Relay for Life, Alpha Sigma Phi's annual philanthropy event, was held on April 14 and raised nearly $23,000 for the American Cancer Society.

Many different events besides the walk occurred throughout the day, such as a three-legged race, touch football, an egg toss, and a water balloon toss. Cancer survivors walked several laps around the Westminster track to the cheers of their supporters. Participants could also purchase luminaries and line the track with them during the Luminaria Ceremony which honors those who have battled cancer. Debbie Sanchez organized a team in honor of Dr. Phyllis Kitzerow of the Sociology department to support her personal fight against cancer. Despite the cold and rainy weather which kept away many, Sanchez expressed the hope and optimism of all the participants, saying, "no matter how bad the weather is, we still always have fun."

Falling in line. The walkers keep each other company throughout the day.

Strength in numbers. Sara Belsito gathers support from her friends, her purple shirt signifying she is a cancer survivor.

VolleyRock began, as always, with a bang as punk group Anberlin headlined a concert the night before to get the campus excited for the next day's games. Saturday, May 5, dawned sunny and warm--perfect weather for the early 9 a.m. start of the first volleyball game. SGA kept the contestants busy between games with several side events such as a dual obstacle course, dunk tank, money grab machine, and free Sno-Cones. DJ "Tony G" played music during the competition to help set the upbeat mood. Junior Elena Infante helped plan VolleyRock, and noted that "VolleyRock went great... and I heard from several people that it was also outstanding and very fun."

SGA awarded cash prizes of $500, $250, and $100 to the first, second, and third placed teams. The team headed up by senior Shaun McNamara won the coveted prize. "Team 2nd" aptly won second place, and "Team Bye" and "Firewood Guys" tied for third. Participants relaxed over all-you-can-eat wings from Quaker Steak and Lube for dinner. Said McNamara of the day, "VolleyRock is a day of fun in the sun on the quad, a chance to have fun with your friends one last time before you graduate."

Graduation

They're all grown up. Dr. Linda Domanski and Dr. Eileen Morelli are already wearing looks of pride as they file into the service.

Why the wait? Jason Hordley, Ross Hordley and Tim Hordley are waiting in the line-up and ready to graduate. The question is, will they graduate in alphabetical order?

One Last Walk

For the second year in a row, cloudy skies and cold weather may have dampened the campus grounds, but not the spirits of Westminster's seniors as they enjoyed Senior Week events. Students enjoyed activities such as a Pirates game and a trip to Cedar Point, while the campus slowly changed in preparation for Saturday's events. Staff had set up chairs in front of Old Main by Wednesday, and tents began to appear on Thursday as the grounds staff hurried to prepare the campus for graduation.

The week-long clouds parted in time for graduation on May 19. The sun returned, and the events of the day began at 10:30 a.m. in Orr Auditorium with the Baccalaureate service. President Williamson greeted the audience with one of his favorite quotes: "This is the day that the Lord has made. Let us rejoice and be glad in it." Joselyn Parker then inspired hope and determination in the audience with her poem, "Dreamer," based on her own obstacles as an African American student at Westminster. Rev. Dr. Jackson, a Westminster alum, concluded the service with his sermon, "How Do We Go From Here?"

After a barbeque on the quad, parents and students separated for the last time before graduation as students lined up for the Commencement ceremony. Ushered onto the quad by bagpiper Donald Wallace, students entered the Senior Terrace by the same faculty "gauntlet" that had greeted them four years previous. During Commencement, President Williamson conferred an honorary degree on Dr. Dianne D. Aronian. Stephanie Martin, this year's class speaker, was the last to speak before degrees were bestowed upon the class of 2007.

Students exited again through the faculty gauntlet, for the first time as alumni of Westminster College. A bright day and cloudless sky greeted them beyond, a hopeful preview of what the future holds for the class of 2007.

Who I am Makes who I've Been

Good Afternoon family, friends, administration, faculty, staff, trustees, and finally, my fellow graduates.

In the first day of every history class I've taken in my four years at Westminster College, I have been asked two questions. "What is history? Why do we study it?" Many ideas are offered, but one that sticks out to me is, "History is the study of events that happened in the past that affect the present and the future." Although this might not be the exact explanation the professors want to hear, I often find myself thinking about this definition in terms of my own life. Whether we want it to or not, everything that happens in our past affects our present and our future in some fashion. Our family life affects our present and future. Our past ideals and traditions affect our present and future. Our education affects our present and future. Every choice we make today affects our life tomorrow. When we look back, what do we want to see? What are we are going to reflect on tomorrow? Are we proud of ourselves?

There is a song made popular by Relient K that you may have heard on our own Titan Radio called "Who I am Hates who I've Been." The singer is not happy with his life because of choices he previously made: "I'm sorry for the person I became. I'm sorry that it took so long for me to change. I'm ready to be sure I never become that way again, because who I am hates who I've been." When we reflect on our lives tomorrow, are we going to feel that way too? I like to change the words around in this song to apply to my own life. Instead of "Who I am hates who I've been." I want to think that, "Who I am makes who I've been."

Looking back in my four years at Westminster I am proud to say that I can find many examples of people who can reflect back on their time here and be proud. They can look back at who they have been and be proud of who they are now because of that.

I think about the recent Student Government Slate Kerns. The vice president worked very hard for months and was able to create a much needed diversity chair filled by an amazingly willing young woman.

I see an academics chair and his committee who worked diligently to create longer library hours so students can utilize the building to study past eleven o'clock.

I think about the education professor who donated a kidney to a stranger in order for a fellow education professor to finally have a functioning kidney. This act of selflessness will be remembered forever.

I think about the groups of students and staff that went to New Orleans to help rebuild houses for strangers after Hurricane Katrina. Giving up their spring break, they will have more uplifting stories than many of us who spent our time sitting on our couch eating our parents' food.

I remember the campus coming together to support the student transferred here after that same hurricane in New Orleans.

I think of sports teams that practice for months and push themselves to become better athletes. I think of the pride they feel after winning the championship for Westminster.

I think of the Greek life on campus. Many women and men came together and raised money and awareness for numerous charities around the community, and some around the nation.

I think of the students and staff who gather around the peace pole to stand for rights and equality for all.

I think of the student groups who raise awareness for those suffering in places around the world such as Darfur and South Africa.

I think of the Black Student Union whose Fashion Show recently brought the campus together in support of the American Cancer Society.

Take a moment and think for yourself. What have you done in the past four years that you are proud of? Certainly making it to this point wearing your cap and gown should provide a little bit of pride.

Now that we have looked back, let's look forward. For some, you may have jobs lined up. For others, that law school, graduate school or medical school is waiting for you to conquer. For the rest of us, our future may not be quite so planned. But for all of us, let us hope that we make decisions that we will be proud of tomorrow, not just for ourselves, but for others. We are a very privileged group of young adults. Many people are not able to have the experience of a private, liberal arts education, let alone any higher education at all. Because of this, we have a responsibility to our community. Filled with knowledge and passion, we have a chance to create a better world. We have the responsibility to aid our neighbor, to get involved in our community, to better the lives of our children so that they can grow up in a safer, more positive world.

So, let us take some chances. Take that extra interview. Meet that new person at work. Keep visiting our family and friends. Further our education. Don't let anyone stop you. Let us not hate our past. Let us be proud. Let us learn from our mistakes and grow to be stronger people. When we get up every morning as we venture out into our new life ahead, let us think to ourselves, "Who I am makes who I've been."

Titan Card Challenge!

Who Can Make It All Four Years?

"I think I went through about three Titan cards. One of them I lost and found three months later in my refrigerator."

-Laura Swanson

"Three Titan cards; don't carry them in your back pocket."

-Marc Saculla

"I'm on my third Titan card. My first one broke Reading Day Eve of spring semester freshman year. I taped it back together, and when I went to cut the extra tape off of it, the scissors fell apart in my hands."

-Sarah Gold

"Miraculously, only one."

For Better, For Worse

Favorite Change to WC:

"TUB restored from Orchard Street Cafe."

-Colin Dean

"Townhouses! Free at last . . . free at last"

-Jenny Slobodian

Least Favorite Change:

"Elimination of Inquiry 102 and community service. If I had to do it, so should everyone else."

-Katie Chandley

"Well, I'm never too happy about tuition raises."

-Anna Long

You Know You're a Senior When...

You're sitting in the caf, looking at a whole group of people eating at the table next to you, and you realize you've never seen them before.

"How's it going?" now means "Are you finished with Capstone?"

You delete every email referring to scheduling with glee.

Your answer to everything is "the bar."

You remember your second Inquiry class . . . with contempt.

Your new criteria for everything is, "Do I need it to graduate?"

Your favorite professor just asked, "You're still here?"

Testing, 1, 2, 3. Jill Carle and Nate Dodd brush up their DJing skills.

Some students do study. Lee Scott makes use of the wireless capabilities on campus.

Study at Westminster

Studying in Eich? Now that the new study lounge in Eich is complete, maybe residents will get more studying done.

Outraged by social change? Leah Timm, Ben Snyder, and Jaci Sabolsky, can't believe Charlie Judge's findings on structured leisure at the sociology capstone presentation.

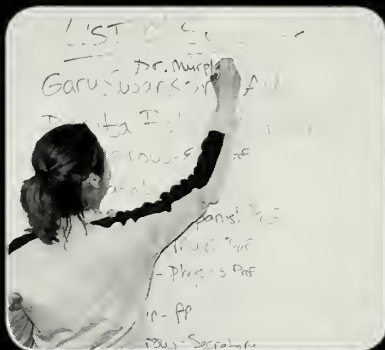

Where Have All the Books Gone?

The library was a bit more difficult to navigate than when students learned how to read call numbers, the books started moving. After years of planning with the Perry Dean Rogers architectural firm and the Bridges construction firm, the renovation of McGill Library officially broke ground in December 2006. Students saw changes immediately, from signing up three flights of stairs to the bathroom to getting photocopies from Russell. Though the ground floor construction posed some difficulties, the renovations will ultimately make McGill much more user-friendly. Compact shelving, air conditioning, and a new elevator are the projects that library patrons will notice, but the construction includes a good deal of unseen work as well, such as replacing the roof. Head librarian Kelly Spinney explained the need for the renovations: "the library was out of space, had accessibility issues, and was set up for single scholars doing work rather than for groups of students doing collaborative work." Construction is scheduled for completion in the summer of 2008.

Westminster Forensics Team

Billy Mcallion strategizes with Jin-Sil Kim and John Magnuson during a biology class. Billy and his classmates searched for beans as part of a foraging exercise.

Making Music. Emily Burke and Tracy Heffner add their expertise to the Undergraduate Research Symposium.

Handle with care. Biology major Courtney Kremer demonstrates the proper way to use one of two scanning electron microscopes.

Study at Westminster

Hanging in Cali. Liz Farry and Mike Wolenski take a break from the National Conference on Undergraduate Research at Dominican University. They presented their research along with three other WC students.

Psychos. Catharine Hebdon, Dan Wren, Chelsea Boecker, Melissa Parkhurst, Sara Sullivan, and Kristin Tarzia crash in the psych lab after working all night.

Working up an appetite. Students take a break from study for meals to attend the biannual Cram Jam during Reading Day.

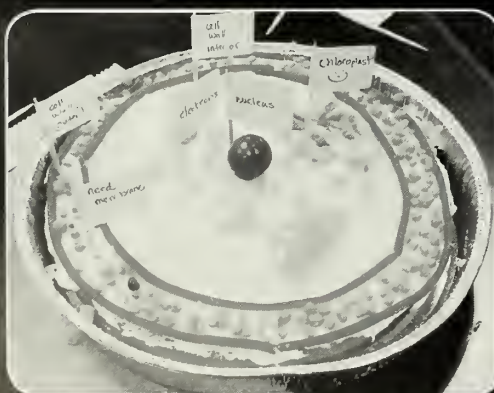

May I take your order? President Williamson was one of the volunteer faculty members who served students free brain food during Cram Jam.

Is it DNA or a snack? David Davis, David Dean, and Andy Starosta rely on each others scientific strengths throughout the competition, as each night features a different branch of science.

The scientists are playing with their food! One of the hands-on portions of Greek Week includes constructing model cells out of baked goods and candy. Lisa Colatruglio made sure Suzanne McGuire kept the nerds inside the membrane.

Buon Appetito! The result of the group projects--one perfectly constructed cell.

Don't eat the cell wall! Veronica Geretz munches on some supplies while Alex Alf attempts to create the outer cell wall with licorice.

Geek Week

rivalry ensues. Four years ago, Geek Week was created due to boasting between the departments about which is the smartest. The boasting contests, and the Geek Week organizers ensure each department (biology, chemistry, physics, mathematics, and geology) is well represented.

There's a test! It would not be Geek Week without an old-fashioned handwritten portion. Beth Porter thinks she has discovered the answer, but Melissa Parkhurst does not look so sure.

Physics time! It's all about how well they fly, but this group's plane hasn't made it off the table. Everything is a test of knowledge during Geek Week—even the directions.

Time to get serious. Some groups are content to play with their high-tec toys, but Natasha Kassim, Callie Croushore, and Colin Campbell are down to business when it comes to the competition.

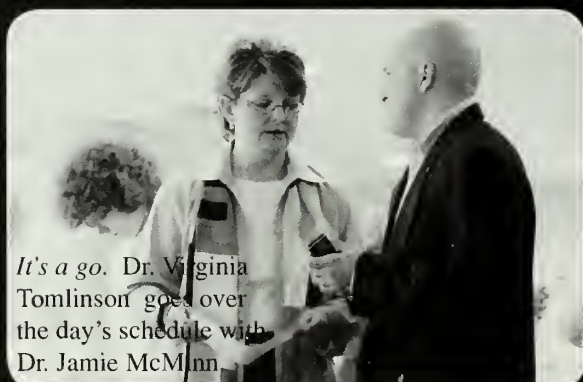

And the Honor Goes to ...

At the Spring Honors Convocation on Saturday, April 28th:

14 Seniors completed the Honors Program

83 students with 80 semester hours and a 3.6 GPA or higher were tapped into Pi Sigma Pi.

It's a go. Dr. Virginia Tomlinson goes over the day's schedule with Dr. Jamie McMinn.

There I am! Jelena Gerga points to one of her pictures from Israel as she explains to Dr. Carolyn Cuff about her independent research and volunteer work in Jerusalem.

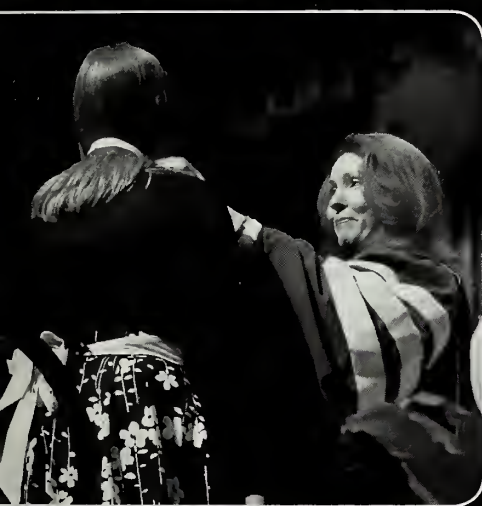

Open wide. Val Kokai explains her research, Toward Soy-Based Dental Composite Materials, to fellow presenter Ben Barbetta.

Honors Convocation

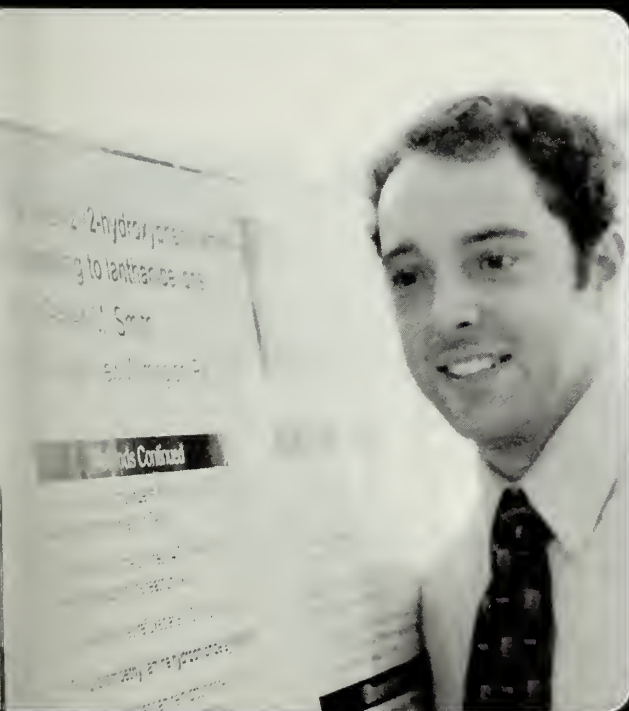

Greetings. President Williamson addresses the audience at the beginning of the convocation.

Center stage. Honors moderator Dr. Bethany Hicok presents Katie Meadows with a well-deserved medal for officially completing the Honors Program.

Tapping in. Leanna Stitt makes her way off stage after being initiated into the the locally chartered honor society, Pi Sigma Pi.

Nice hat. Julie Tvaruzek chats with Dr. Joel Postema at the reception following the convocation.

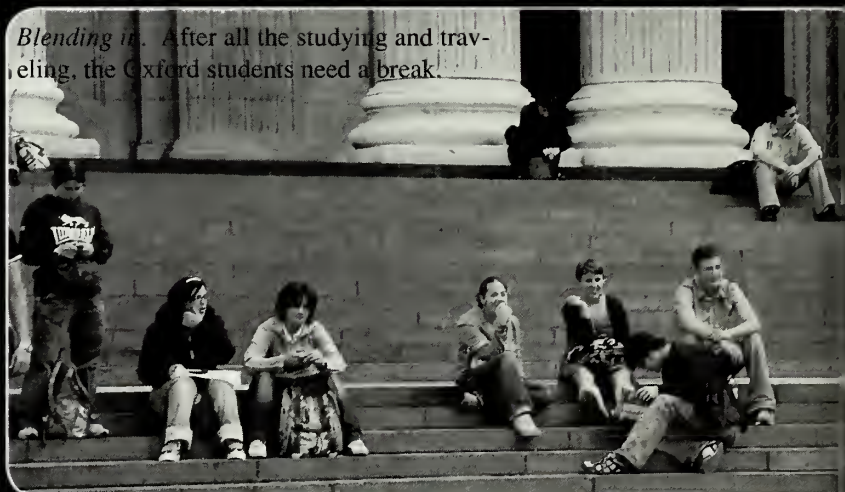

Say that three times fast. Kyle Schuyler presented his senior research at the Undergraduate Research Symposium: Synthesis of N-(2-hydroxyphenyl)-N', N'-bis-(2-(2-hydroxyphenyl)amino-ethyl)-ethane-1, 2-diamine for Bonding to Lanthanide Ions.

A foggy day. Jacob Shaffer, Jennie Pride, Alissa Bookwalter, Katie Pride, and John Marlowe visit St. Paul's Cathedral in London.

Brains and brawn. Students make sure to keep up their exercise regimen while at Oxford. A 10K run at Blenheim Palace should do it.

Blending in. After all the studying and traveling, the Oxford students need a break.

The Goings on across the Pond

15 students enrolled in the Oxford program for Fall 2006 to attend Pembroke College.

Dr. Barbara Faires was the accompanying WC professor who taught on Art, Architecture, and Mathematics.

The Oxford Bloopers

"Stories range from the Glasgow airport taking everything but the clothing Suzie DiFonzo had with her, studying for finals in a Barcelona hostel, to translating for a Canadian couple who had been lost for hours and needed a place to stay."

~Jennie Pride

A delicacy. Being in another country does not mean they are no longer college students. Matthew Steffy, Jacob Shaffer, and John Marlowe demonstrated easy ways to conserve money.

A bit better than the dorms. Matthew Steffy, Jacob Shaffer, John Morlowe and Kelsi Daloisio make themselves at home outside Buckingham Palace.

Where in the World Are WC Students?

During the 2006-2007 academic year, 21 students studied abroad at the following universities:

Univ. of Granada, Spain
 Art Institute of Pittsburgh, U.S.
 Univ. of Salamanca, Spain
 Univ. of Sevilla, Spain
 Yonsei Univ., Rep. of Korea
 Pablo de Olavide Univ., Spain
 Univ. of Grenoble, France
 American Univ., U.S. (D.C.)
 The Catholic Univ., France
 Computense Univ. of Madrid, Spain
 Las Veritas Univ., Costa Rica
 American Univ. in Cairo, Egypt

Abroad at home. Though Ashley Y did not leave the country, she acquired experience during the foreign policy program at the American Univ. in D.C. Of course, she also got to go to a Wizards game.

Can't get much further. Chris Stone chose to make his studying abroad experience rather abroad, traveling all the way to Cairo. The political science major made sure to see the sights while studying, making sure to glimpse the Great Pyramids.

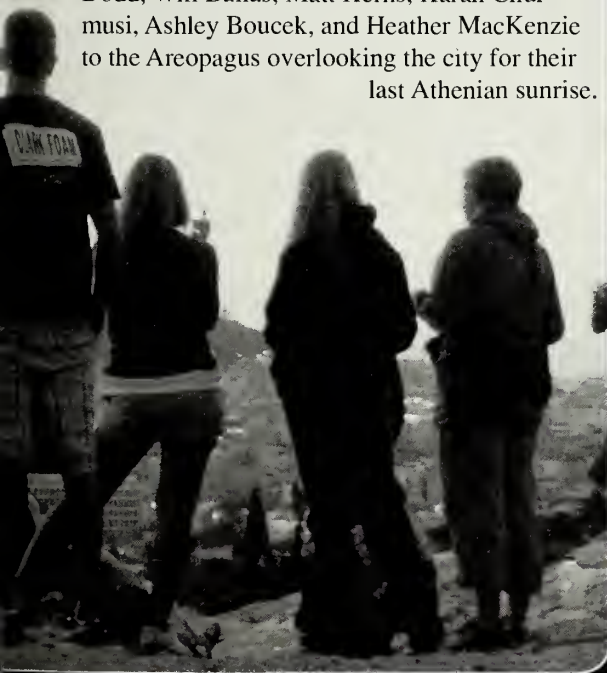

Study Abroad

Ole. Jennie Pride and Erin Tarpey both studied in San Jose, Costa Rica in the spring. Here, they are preparing for a presentation.

It's all Greek to me. Some students wary about being away from home for an entire semester opt for travel courses instead. A cluster course in Greek government and literature lead Nate Dodd, Will Ballas, Matt Kerns, Karah Churmusi, Ashley Boucek, and Heather MacKenzie to the Areopagus overlooking the city for their last Athenian sunrise.

"Every since it was established at Westminster, ALLIES has enjoyed the growing support of the faculty and student body. We will continue to raise awareness of issues that are important to the gay, lesbian, trans-sexual, and transgender community with events such as Jeans Day, Aids Awareness, and Day of Silence. In the near future, we plan on reaching out and making connections with ALLIES groups from other nearby campuses. And we hope to engage the Westminster community in a discussion about the difference between tolerance, a step in the right direction, and acceptance, the ultimate goal of every individual and group in society."

Circle K focused on Children's Literacy by making bookmarks to hand out to local children and starting a reading hour in the children's library. One of the other main projects Circle K did was the Reuse-A-Shoe program, where they collected used tennis shoes and sent them to the Nike outlet. The outlet then sent the shoes to nationals where they were broken down to make playground surfaces and fields for children in communities where there is not a lot of money.

"The WC equestrian team has been a rewarding part of my college experience. We are a 'small and mighty' team that competes against other schools in our region (such as Pitt, WVU, and Allegheny) in almost weekly competitions throughout the year. Though some of our members ride in competition, other girls join specifically to increase their knowledge of horses and just to spend some time with the critters on the farm. It is great to see people who have never ridden before develop into great riders in one semester. We also delivered five foals this spring, and seeing those 'gawky' little guys can brighten even the most stressed out student's day."

The International Cultures Club works to actively promote awareness and the understanding of international cultures on campus. Nearly every month a new country is 'spotlighted,' and the club focuses on that country: watching a foreign film, eating that culture's food, and listening to speakers who have lived in the spotlight countries are just some of the activities ICC does to open students to the world.

One idea from the Jubilee conference is the idea "that everyone returns to square one. Everyone gets to start over," states Lynn Elliott, a staff member of the Jubilee Committee at Westminster. This year, the committee got creative and illustrated this idea by holding a game of 'Jubilopoly,' Monopoly® where everyone's money was redistributed and their property cards returned at varying points in the game. Fundraisers were held as well in order to raise money for the group's yearly trip to the Jubilee Conference.

The Croquet Club grew out of the long time hobbies and traditions upheld by the Yellow House crew. Their activities include, you guessed it, croquet games in the quad. This lackadaisical group doesn't even mind that they are short a few wickets, the spirit of the game is all that matters.

The Croquet Club helped us find ourselves, but more importantly, it helped us find each other."

How Some Organizations
Made Their Presence Known

The newly reorganized Lambda Pi Eta showed they really know their PR stuff by providing classmates with free popsicles. The girls used this opportunity to discuss the organization with interested students.

What's AGD? Jamie Guffey and Jen Ramsey are happy to tell anyone about the Alpha Gams and their charity work.

In line. All the girls joined together to support their sisters during the Greek Week activities.

Don't fall! Like all the sororities and fraternities, AGD went all out for their "Humpty Dumpty" Homecoming float.

Chilling out. Mike Cacchione, James Petrolla, and Dan Watson tough it out the cold.

Avid fans. Brett Myers and Joey Tissler get into the game.

Alpha Sigma Phi

A little face paint goes a long way. Amy Carroll and Emily Wall are sporting their Sig Kap gear.

A good cause. Sigma Kappa raised money for Alzheimer's disease throughout the year by selling lolipops.

She didn't know what to do. Sigma Kappa's "Old Woman in a Shoe" float certainly delivered the right amount of kids.

Best seats in the house. The Alpha Sigma Phi brothers got creative to make sure they were comfortable.

All aboard. Everyone hopped up to get a ride with Little Red Riding Hood during Homecoming.

All in the family. Everyone breaks out their hoods for the annual brotherhood event.

Pile-up. The boys get competitive on Guy's Pick-Up Day.

Sigma Phi Epsilon

In search of Miss Muffet. D. Kirkwood, C. Miller, and M. McLaughlin lead the Zeta spiders through the parade.

Girl Power. Teal Kawana, supported by her sisters, puts up quite the fight in tug-of-war.

Smile so they can see us. Christina Sansone, Marissa De-Mase, and Ashley Ray are hiding out during Greek Week.

Loud and proud. Melissa Sperdute calls out her support for Homecoming Queen.

Standing their ground. Even with the Eps barrelling toward them as one, the other Greeks make sure to keep their place in the line-up.

Make Way. Travis Bieda is ushered through as the Eps' Miss Titan contestant.

Focus factor. Even in the middle of Greek Week hysteria, Jordan Flaim finds time to golf.

Greek Week

It's the new way to exercise. Tony Campana gives an extra shove to get Elena Infante's "chariot" moving across the field.

Have you got the notion? Ben Jarrett's boat may be rocking, but it's still afloat, and that's all that's required for the "Anything that Floats" race.

What a line-up. The boys pulled out all the stops for the Miss Titan title.

Which way? It seems that the directions got a little confused as Patrick Thomas and Emily Fink tear up the relay.

The heat is on. Tension builds as everyone waits to get their hands on a dodgeball.

Survey says? The Alpha Gams and the Zetas are in the middle of a heated "Greek feud."

Got you covered. Josh Kutzner does his best to gain control during a Sig Nu/Theta Chi Ultimate Frisbee match, but Dan O'Keefe keeps a tight grip as he looks to pass.

Watch your step! Michelle Bistrice travels through some rough terrain during the Fisher Invitational.

Closing in. Amy Carroll gets in position to pass a Mercy-Hurst opponent.

Too slow. Elizabeth Beardsley breezes by a Grove City runner.

Let the games begin! All the runners are going at full capacity as they start of the Mideast Regional. WC finished 32nd.

Warming up. Michelle Bistrice wards off the cold as the other runners.

Concentration. Not letting the pack of runners get to her, Elizabeth Beardsley focuses on the finish line.

Take five. The Women's X-Country team slows down for a quick snapshot, and then it's back to the course.

Heads up! Justin Flowers goes up to head the ball down the field.

On the chase. Garret Horvath beats his opponent to the ball.

Brrr. Todd Atwood braves the cold for a Titan win against Waynesburg.

A Titan First

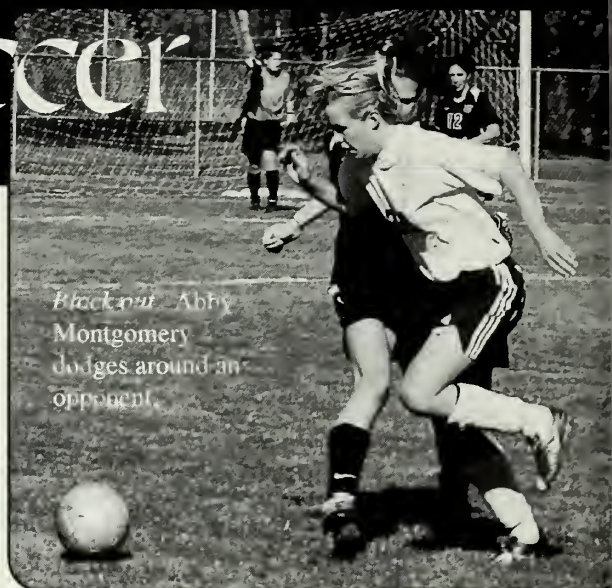

On March 22nd senior Blake Ordell became the first Westminster soccer player to join the pros. Ordell has proven an asset to the Titans, having scored a total of 24 goals during his soccer career at Westminster College. Ordell will take the field with the Cincinnati Kings during their regular season in mid-August.

Women's Soccer

Tie Tac Toe. Kristen Martin and Sarah Calderone surround the opponent and gain control of the ball.

Black out. Abby Montgomery dodges around an opponent.

Passing it along. First year Lauren Graeser moves the ball downfield.

"I think we have made strides this season despite our record; we really have been in every game we have played this season . . . this says a lot about the youth of our team. I think we are looking for big things next season."

~Junior, Shane Parker

Cheerleading

Let's Go Titans! Jenny Slobodian and Danielle Rand encourage crowd participation during a cheer.

Score! Seniors Stevi Nelson, Teal Kawana, Joelle Wells, and Jenny Slobodian step up to lead the squad.

Team Effort. It takes all twelve girls to build this stunt as they cheer on the Titans. Brittany Donegan, Tara Coyne, and Marissa Demase led the crowd in between plays.

First Row: S. Nelson, T. Kawana, J. Wells, J. Slobodian. Second Row: T. Coyne, B. Donegan, D. Rand, K. Swihart, S. Germano (Coach). Third Row: E. Hayek, C. Sansone, M. DeMase, S. Bruening.

Hold tight. Co-captain Joelle Wells braves the rushing players as they break through the sign and enter the field for the Homecoming game.

Pick it up! The squad supports Tara Coyne as she shows off one of the stunts the girls premiered this season.

Lunging in spirit. Co-captain Teal Kawana hits the last motion of the cheer along with Tara Coyne. The squad worked over the summer to update their routines and introduce new cheers and stunts.

A New Level . . .

"Many changes occurred this year for the Titan cheerleaders. Our new coach, Sharlee Germano, brought new ideas and a higher level of discipline to our practices. The co-captains, Teal and Joelle, and all the girls strove to bring new life to the squad with different cheers and stunts. During basketball season, we even revealed our first halftime routine. There has been a lot of growth and greater involvement on the squad, and I think the progress this year is only the beginning."

~Senior Jenny Slobodian

Volleyball

A little help. Corrie Gasser sets the ball as Devin Kelly prepares to hit it over the net.

Hands up. Devin Kelley and Rachel Cooper make a wall of arms to score on the opposing team.

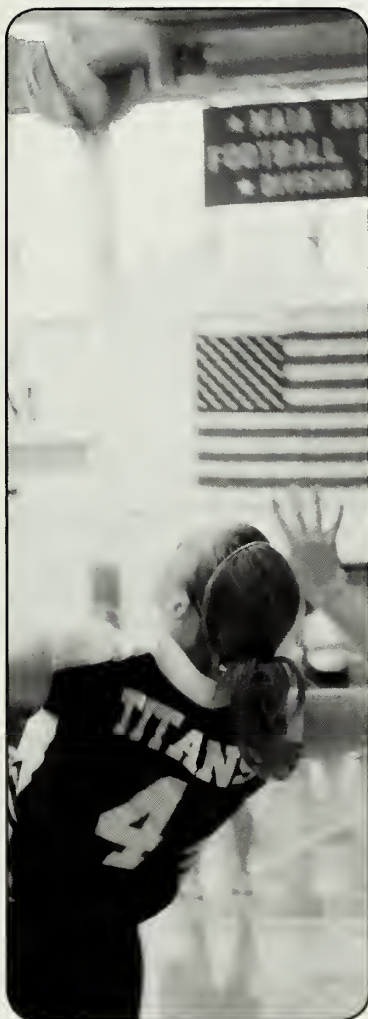

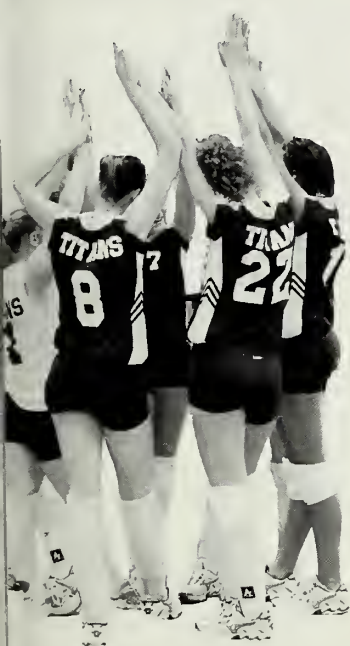

Power shot. Reesha Jackson sets up for a spike to pull her team into the lead.

First Row: H. Patterson, K. Hoch, C. Blaker, R. Terzak, J. Hinks, B. Copp, C. Gasser. Second Row: A. Smith (Asst. Coach), M. Schmitt (Asst. Coach), R. Cooper, T. Hassell, D. Kelley, R. Jackson, D. Hogue, K. McDermott, S. Botzum, D. Conzett, B. Lewis (Asst. Coach), T. Swearingen (Head Coach).

Bump, set, spike. Kylene Hoch leaps into action to slam the ball over the net.

Serves up! Beth Copp is perfectly posed to deliver a crushing blow to the opposing team.

So You Want to Be a Golfer?

A Golf Tip for the Beginner:

It's all in the stance.

There are 3 different types of stances that good golfers practice:

- 1) Square Stance: draw a line from the ball to the target and keep your feet straight and at an equal distance away from this line.
- 2) Open Stance: Using the same imaginary line, place your left foot further away from the line than your right. (This stance is good for slicing to the right.)
- 3) Closed Stance: Move your left foot closer to the line than your right. (This stance is usually to hook the ball.)

Health

2006-07 was "overall a healthy year on campus," according to Judy Duda. However, "this has been the biggest year for the stomach flu that we've had in a long time," she added. It was a year of change as well. A new doctor, Dr. Sharon Dawso, was added to the staff, and the Health Center's hours were extended from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

A Little Help from My Friends

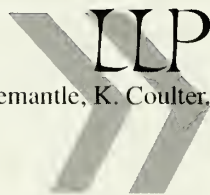

The Learning Center is a volunteer organization in which student TA's help their peers with reading and writing strategies as well as discipline-specific skills and content. During the 2006-2007 academic year, the Learning Center was equipped with 17 TA's, who represented all disciplines and sat for a combined 463 sessions.

"I have the best job because I get to hang out each day with Westminster's 'cream of the crop'—not only as students but as people!"

Did you know...?

"32% of the campus operating revenues goes towards scholarships. The college only gets 66% of its operating costs from tuition and fees. Last year, Westminster College received $4,932,371.76 in alumni donations. Of this figure, almost $900,000 went to endowed and non-endowed scholarships."

Q: Which class holds the most donations title?

A: The Class of 1951 with a total of $74,631

What brings students to Westminster College is unclear. Some students say they came for safety, for what they were used to. But as students at a little liberal arts college, many of us find quite the opposite. What is inspiring about the college is the way that the community, the faculty, the groups we form inspire us to get out and do things—travel, learn, experience, get involved in anything but what we’re used to. We enter Westminster because it’s a good school, small and safe. What we find, however, is that the college is always evolving. Every year new students come with ideas and opinions that affect the school and the community. The students shape the college, and the faculty gives us the means to push for change elsewhere. After four years are over, almost all of us are ready to leave, do, experience. Graduates get out and go, and then they come back. For whatever reason, whether it’s to visit friends and professors or just to see what it’s like, the old comes back to clash with the new and then leave again »

Best wishes to the class of 2007!
Keep up the good work!

Faculty Member of the Year

Dr. Jim Perkins

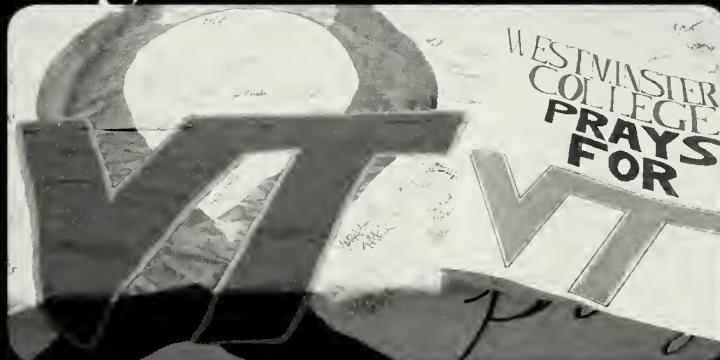

As Faculty Chair, Dr. Perkins delivered a short speech at the 2007 Commencement ceremony in which he thanked the parents of the Class of 2007 for allowing him and the rest of the faculty to teach their children for four years, to watch and help them grow. Although Dr. Perkins has been published as an author of both poetry and short stories, anyone who has met him knows that the compassion for teaching he expressed is anything but fictional. As a member of the English and Public Relations department since 1973, Dr. Perkins has been equally devoted to his literary career (as a writer and Robert Penn Warren scholar) and his teaching career. Last year, he received the Distinguished Faculty Award a year earlier than he expected—a year earlier than his planned retirement, that is. Whether serving as Department Chair, pioneering the Oxford program, or organizing sports outings for old students, Dr. Perkins never steps out of the mentoring role. His students hope he never will and have successfully kept him out of retirement thus far. “Though he teaches in my department, the only class I ever had with Dr. Perkins was Inquiry,” explained senior Jenny Slobodian. “Not being in his classes didn’t stop him from keeping up with my projects and future plans, which he would ask me about during surprise lunches in the TUB or when he found me at the back of a campus event.” For constant devotion to his field, the education of his students, and their wellbeing as well as his ability to keep everyone on their toes, Dr. Jim Perkins is our Faculty Member of the Year.

So you are seniors
way to go!

2007 Dedication

To those who were wounded or lost their lives in the Virginia Tech massacre

And to all those whose lives have been affected by this and other

Letter from the Editor-in-Chief

In preparing to put together this last page, I couldn't help reflecting on the transformation that both this book and I have been through. I will be the first to admit that I had to be coaxed into this position. I had never worked on a yearbook until I came to Westminster, and even then I was on the Copy Staff using words, not computers, to put together my deadlines. I knew that signing my name on the Editor-in-Chief line meant that the whole book was mine whether I liked it or not and that the book came with new layout software that nobody knew how to use. That was enough to make me second guess myself then, when I had no idea that there would be payroll issues, lost staff members, external hard drive meltdowns, library renovations in the middle of my portrait studio, and any of the other blunders that occurred on the way. I know now that the theme for this book should have been "Follow Murphy's Law" even though this Argo did keep me "in motion" more than not. Now that it's actually done, I want to thank everyone who encouraged me to take this position when I didn't think I could do it. It's been a trying time, but I've grown to love yearbook. I hope everyone at some point gets to experience something of the frustration, hilarity, selfconfidence, and reward that this book has brought me.

I must also give special thanks to those who helped me and the book when we were both in dire need. Thank you to Connie McGinnis (I didn't cry!), Lois Kazenski of Herff Jones, Jim Rainey and the DaVor Photographers, Deans Edman and Hawthorne, the Student Affairs Office (Kathy Suosio and Beth Brooks in particular), the Registrar's Office, Physical Plant, Colin Dean and The Holcad, the Student Publications Board, and President Williamson. Not to forget Security, who let us keep the lights on until 5 a.m., Colby King for your unwavering support as the Unofficial Argo Office Mascot, and to everyone we begged, bribed, and kidnapped for their information.

In saying that, I must thank the incredible support staff that I had throughout this creation. Laura ("Swan") and Amanda, thank you for your work in both assisting and leading the Copy and Photography staffs. To those staffs, thank you for the time and talent you gave to this book for free. We would not be able to keep the yearbook running without you. Kocher, not only did you provide me with exceptional copy, but you also dealt with my scatterbrained instructions—merci beaucoup. Chelsea, otherwise known as the Argo lifejacket. I still have no idea how we pulled this off. I know that I don't need to tell you how amazing your photography is, but I want to anyway . . . really, it is. What might be even more amazing is your ability to understand what's going on in my head and help me bring that to the page. We were quite the duo, and you will be missed. I hope you get to make use of your talents wherever you might land.
